

U. S. GRAND JURY NOW IN SESSION

Out of 155 Defendants Before Court, 126 Are Charged With Selling Liquor to Indians.

Special to the Journal-Miner.

PHOENIX, April 21.—When the United States District Court was convened at Phoenix, Monday, for the empanelling of the grand jury for the April term, Judge Morrow was confronted with more men in the prisoner's box than at any time before in the history of the federal or territorial courts. There were 155 defendants before the court, 126 of whom are charged with selling liquor to Indians.

The grand jury is composed of the following persons: J. H. Allison, F. E. Criswell, Henry Clifford, A. W. Flickenger, O. D. M. Gaddis, Geo. E. Lilley, R. J. Perkins, Sr., John H. Page, John L. Pepper, A. C. Sieboth, E. A. Tovera, David Wallace, W. H. Brophy, Junius Brewster, Jas. C. Custer, J. H. Dobson, W. H. Gibbons, Paul Hobby, W. A. Lines, Geo. S. Marable, Nabor Pacheco, R. Power, A. T. Sowley, John G. Verkamp. They are representative of all parts of the state.

Judge Morrow appointed Alfred C. Sieboth of Florence, foreman of the grand jury.

In addition to the liquor selling cases, the other offenses submitted to the grand jury are as follows: unlawfully fencing government lands 6, smuggling 10, introducing liquor on an Indian reservation 3; having smoking opium in possession 2, counterfeiting 1, unlawfully personating another 1, white slave act 2, unlawfully settling on forest reserve 1, larceny of cattle from government reserve 1, violating postal laws 2, removing of government monument 1.

In his charge to the grand jury, Judge Morrow dealt particularly with the liquor selling traffic. After the customary charge to the jurors as to their duties, he said:

"It will not be necessary at this time to call your attention to any particular violations of the law with respect to which special or particular instructions are required. There will be a large number of cases presented to you of violations of the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor to the Indians. I was at first disposed to think that the sale of liquor to the Indians had become an established industry in this state and that there must be some defect in the law, or in its administration, that would permit such a large number of violations to come before the court at one term. There are a large number of Indian tribes in this state, and practically all of the Indians of these tribes are wards of the government; that is to say, they are under the care and protection of the Government, and, of course, it is the duty of the government to protect these Indians from the demoralization resulting from the use of intoxicating liquors. I would like to believe that the government is doing its full duty in this respect, and perhaps it is, but the charges of violations of the law sent here by the United States Commissioners to be submitted to you are so numerous that I think the matter is a subject for your careful consideration. If the large number of cases represent merely the efficiency of the government officers in prosecuting offenders, whereby the traffic will be made more difficult and dangerous, then there is nothing to do but to continue this efficiency, and for the officers charged with the duty to continue to energetically enforce the law. But if, of the other hand, the large number of cases indicate that the liquor traffic with the Indians is on the increase, then any recommendation you may make looking to a mitigation of the evil will be carefully considered and submitted to the Department of Indian Affairs for such action as the Secretary of the Interior may approve. This last named officer is from the West, and is, therefore, advised generally as to the situation. But beyond that he is in thorough sympathy with any effort that may be made to protect the Indians and make them an industrious, thrifty and happy people.

"The disturbed condition of affairs in Mexico has made it more difficult for the officers of the Government to enforce the custom and revenue laws, and a number of cases of that character will be brought to your attention.

"The act of June 25th, 1910, commonly called the 'White Slave Act' will also be brought to your attention in connection with the charge that it has been violated in this State. The offense of transporting women and girls from one state to another for immoral purposes is new to the Federal law, but it is unquestionably a wise law, and the good effect of its vigorous enforcement in various places is already apparent in preventing many innocent women and girls from surrendering themselves to lives of abject slavery and in saving them from the attending degradation and shame.

"I need not refer to the other cases that will be submitted to your consideration. You will give careful consideration to the evidence in all the cases, and the advice of the United States Attorney with respect to the evidence to be submitted.

"Let me ask that you will attend promptly at your various sessions so that your work may be expeditiously performed and completed. By the observance of this instruction you may be permitted in a few days to return to your homes and your business."

NEW YORK'S GREAT

TURKEY TROT WAR

NEW YORK, April 19.—Not in decades has New York seethed so wildly as it is now doing over the question of dancing. Incredible as it may seem to outsiders, this question with a very great number of people throughout the city, people of every class, is overshadowing everything else. Compared to it the income tax is a side issue and the tariff a matter of little importance.

For New York is in the midst of a great turkey trot war. To a very much lesser degree this has spread to some other parts of the country. Here, however, the struggle has assumed tremendous proportions, which it is believed only legislation at Albany can settle. There are many who believe that even this will be inadequate.

The average New Yorker apparently believes that his right to dance when he pleases, where he pleases, and particularly how he pleases, is guaranteed under the constitution, or if it is not, should be. The Mayor's recent order closing at one o'clock places at which New York is accustomed to dance, caused a roar which could have been, and undoubtedly was heard at Albany. The few places which got around the order coined money and soon New Yorkers in their insatiable desire to dance caused open violations. Afternoon turkey trotting, even Sunday afternoon trotting flourishes, and New York is apparently dance mad. The announcement of the Mayor that the ban would be put on certain kinds of dances evoked fresh howls of rage and derision and the battle waxed only fiercer.

Passengers on incoming steamships report that the affair is assuming international importance since developments are largely followed abroad. There is no doubt of the seriousness of the situation, or its importance in the eyes of New Yorkers, though it is hard for an outsider to understand such a tempest in a teapot. But apparently to limit New Yorkers as to the quantity or quality of their dancing is the one thing they will not stand for and the turkey trot battle is likely to go down in history as one of New York's fiercest.

CONFIRMS STRIKE

(From Sunday's Daily.)

F. J. Stein, operating copper mines in the Zonia section, returned to his camp yesterday, after making arrangements to install a big hoisting plant immediately. He states that the striking of a fine body of copper ore has taken place, and that the property is open to inspection by anyone. The sinking of the main working shaft to a depth of at least 400 feet has been decided upon, and no drifting or crosscutting will begin until that point is reached. Several eastern associates will arrive in May.

"If in the olden days" Major Doran states, "had the legislatures of which I was a member for several terms, initiated such methods of devouring the financial vitality of the country, as is going on, we would never have been recalled. We would have been taken to the banks of the Salt River and with weights on our necks thrown into the stream when it was at flood tide."
